

2023 Net Zero Energy Calendar

A collaboration between Burlington Electric Department and the Burlington School District

What?

The 2023 Net Zero Energy Calendar, an annual collaboration between Burlington Electric Department and Burlington School District for more than 15 years.

When and Where?

In October 2022, members of the Burlington Electric Department and Vermont Energy Education Program teams visited with all the fourth-grade classes in all six Burlington elementary schools to engage in a conversation about the important topics of energy efficiency, renewability, sustainability, and Net Zero Energy.

Who?

More than 100 of the amazingly thoughtful and talented fourth graders of the Burlington School District created beautiful works of art with their impressions of energy efficiency, renewability, sustainability, and Net Zero Energy, 14 of which fill the pages of this colorful and educational calendar.

Why?

To encourage Burlington's fourth graders to think about how they can make a difference in their everyday lives as we fight against climate change.

Thank you!

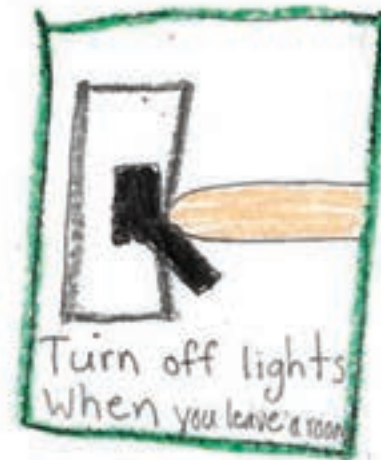

Burlington Electric Department offers sincere thank yous to:

- Burlington's elementary school principals and fourth-grade teachers for welcoming us into their classrooms to engage in conversation about energy with the students;
- Burlington's fourth graders for their enthusiasm and interest in energy efficiency, renewability, sustainability, and Net Zero Energy, and for the wonderful creative artwork; and
- The parents, siblings, and friends who encouraged our fourth graders to participate in the annual Net Zero Energy calendar contest.

A Special Thanks To Our Co-Sponsors
